

AVAILABLE FOR INTERVIEW

Contact: Dina Barsky
(856) 489-8654, ext 319
Dina@smithpublicity.com

Some bonds can never be broken

INTERVIEW THE MOTHER WHO FOUND A WAY TO COMMUNICATE WITH HER LOST DAUGHTER

According to the World Health Organization and UNICEF, 623,000 children died unexpectedly from car accidents, fire, drowning, falls, and poisonings in 2009 alone. Talia Klein was one of those children.

Just two days before Christmas, thirteen-year-old Talia Klein perished when the small private plane she was on crashed into a volcano in Panama. The event made international headlines as Klein, and the world, waited for the news that would never come. Without question, the tragic event devastated her mother's heart and shattered her entire belief system. But soon after, Talia began communicating with her mother, and pulled Kimberly Klein's focus out of utter despair and toward focusing on learning how to communicate with Talia in the afterlife.

"My experience showed me that almost immediately after my daughter's body died, she began trying to communicate with me. Her spirit was still very much alive," said Klein. "It was the ability to hear from Talia that helped me through the trauma of losing her. Without that, I don't think I would have survived."

As millions throughout the world closely followed Klein's search for her daughter, and the devastating news that followed, her unique perspective can help anyone struggling through the loss of a child. In an interview Klein can discuss:

- How it is possible to continue a relationship with someone who has passed away
- Learning how to communicate with loved ones who've passed away – the one thing you can do to start the process of this kind of communication
- Surviving the loss of a child – while there is no formula, the unique way Klein made it through
- How to heal others from the grief of losing a loved one
- The unique signals Klein receives from her daughter, and how others can open themselves up to receiving similar experiences

"Anyone can communicate with a loved one who has crossed over," believes Klein. "My experience is not an exclusive ability. Anyone can develop it with the willingness, the openness, the desire, and a little help."

Main Office 1930 E. Marlton Pike, Suite I-46, Cherry Hill, NJ 08003 | 856.489.8654 • Fax 856.504.0136

New York City • Los Angeles • Toronto • London www.smithpublicity.com • info@smithpublicity.com

To aid in her own healing, and to share her experiences with those dealing with a similar loss, Klein has just released Hummingbirds Don't Fly In The Rain, a deeply personal memoir about the loss of a child and Klein's transformational discovery that there really is no such thing as death.

Raised in Southern California, Kimberly Klein attended the University of California, Santa Barbara. After graduating with a B.A. in Political Science, attending law school and being admitted to the California State Bar, Klein worked with her then husband in real estate investments and their high-tech companies. Klein now spends her time writing about her experiences surrounding the death of Talia and is learning how to heal others from the grief of losing a loved one. She currently resides in Nevada, where she enjoys the peaceful desert scenery and continues on her path of healing, learning, and spiritual awakening.

For more information on Kimberly Klein please visit www.kimberlyklein.com. Hummingbirds Don't Fly In The Rain is available on the author's website and www.Amazon.com.

REVIEW COPIES AVAILABLE UPON REQUEST

###